عوام کی آسودگی کا مشترکہ ایجنڈا

وزیر اعظم عمران خان نے کہا ہے کہ پارلیمنٹ سے طویل مذاکرات کے بعد مسئلہ حل کا مجاہدہ ہو گیا ہے، جس کی تفصیلات سے متعلقہ حکام جلد عوام کو آگاہ کریں گے۔ وزیر اعظم نے عوام پر زور دیا کہ وہ احتیاط کا دامن ہاتھ سے نہ چھوڑیں، دو سال بہت مشکل میں گزارے ہیں۔ جب اقتدار سنبھالا تو بہت مشکل حالات تھے، قرضوں کی قسطیں ادا کرنی تھیں، قارن ایکسچینج تھا نہیں، ہم دیوالیہ ہونے جا رہے تھے۔ اب وہ حالات نہیں رہے، آمدن بڑھنا شروع ہوئی ہے، جو لالی میں ہدف سے زائد ٹیکس وصولی ہوئی ہے، اس سے روزگار کے مواقع بھی پیدا ہوئے ہیں۔ وزیر اعظم نے بہت بڑی خوشخبری دی ہے کہ کورونا کے باوجود ہماری برآمدات بڑھنا شروع ہوئی ہیں، خدا کرے عالمی رجائیت زمینی حقائق سے ہم آہنگ رہے۔ اطمینان اور مجاہدے ایک ہم کیرا اقتصادی پالیسیوں کے معاشی فوائد کی شکل اختیار کریں، معیشت کی صورتحال میں بہتری پر بھی قوم کو مبارکباد دیتے ہوئے انھوں نے کہا کہ کرنٹ اکاؤنٹ اور بائیاں خسارے میں کمی آئی ہے، بچت اور کاروں کی فروخت میں اضافہ ہوا ہے اور برآمدات ٹیکس حاصل بڑھ رہے ہیں۔ یہ چیزیں معاشی صورتحال میں بہتری کی علامت ہیں، ہاں، آغاز اچھا ہوا تو عوام کو فوائد بھی جلد نظر آنا چاہئیں تھے لیکن اس حقیقت سے انکار نہیں کہ حکومت کو معاشی استحکام کی گہرائی کا راز سمجھ آئی ہے، بہت سا وقت ضائع ہوا ہے اب قوم کو امید نتائج چاہئیں۔ اقتصادی حقائق جتنی اصل طاقت ہوتی ہے، اس قدر سے آگہی اشد ضروری ہے جب کہ کورونا وائرس نے بھی قیامت ڈھائی ہے۔ معیشت، سیاست، سماجی ترقی اور امن کے اشرات سے ملک کو شاید سامنے مسائل پیش آئے، اس پر وزیر اعظم نے صائب اندیشہ اور مذاکرات کے ساتھ اطمینان ظاہر کیا ہے، وزیر اعظم کے مطابق اب صنعتوں اور عوام کے لیے سہولتیں بھی دستیاب ہیں، ماضی کی حکومتوں نے پاور کمپنیوں کے ساتھ ایسے معاہدے کیے جن کے ذریعے بہت مہنگی بجلی رسد ملی تھی اور ہماری صنعتیں شعبے دیگر ممالک کی صنعتوں کا مقابلہ نہیں کر پا رہی تھیں، اسی لیے ہماری معیشت اور ٹیکس اشرات بھی عوام کو بھی مہنگی بجلی مل رہی تھی، اب انشاء اللہ حالات بہتر ہو جائیں گے۔ بلاشبہ معیشت نے کورنا لینے اور اقتصادی استحکام کی طرف خوش آیند سفر شروع کر دیا ہے مگر ایک بہ کیر اقتصادی جست اور غیر معمولی بریک تھرو نا گزیر ہے، کرنٹ دو سال اگر چہ مشکلات اور ٹائیلنجز سے نمٹنے کے سال تھے لیکن یہ بھی حقیقت ہے کہ مکلی معیشت کو وہ اہداف نہیں مل سکے جس کا حکومت اور وزیر اعظم نے قوم سے وعدہ کیا تھا، نلیڈ لنک کو لینڈ نے سفر سے اقتصادی مسائل کی ضرورت تھی، حکومت کو اپنا ہوم ورک مکمل کرکے عوام کو اعتماد میں لینا ہے اپنی اقتصادی پالیسیوں پر مطمئن کر دیتے ہوئے قوم کو موثر معاشی حکمت عملی اور بہبودی شرات کی فراہمی کے لیے بڑی پیش قدمی کرنی چاہیے۔ اگر حکومت اپنے عزم کو آج بھی بروئے کار لاتے تو کچھ بھی ہو سکتا ہے۔ 74 ویں عوام آزادی پر اپنے خصوصی پیغام میں وزیر اعظم نے قوم کو آزادی کی مبارکباد دیتے ہوئے کہا ہے کہ سابق حکومتوں کی پالیسیوں اور معاہدوں کی وجہ سے مہنگی بجلی کے باعث گرفتی بڑھتے بڑھتے جا رہے تھے کیونکہ جس قیمت پر ہم بجلی لے رہے تھے اس سے کم پر صارفین کو فراہم کر رہے تھے، اس طریقے سے کوئی بھی کاروبار نہیں چل سکتا، اب حکومت بجلی کے لائن لاسز اور چوری روکنے کے لیے بھی اصلاحات لا رہی ہے۔ وزیر اعظم نے اس حوالے سے نوٹ بھی کیا جا رہی ہے جس پر کہا گیا ہے کہ ہم نے قائد اعظمؒ اور علامہ اقبالؒ کے پاکستان کی جانب سفر شروع کر دیا ہے، جہاں قانون کی نظر میں سب برابر ہو سکے، ریاست ان کے حقوق کی حفاظت دے گی، پاکستان کو اسلامی فلاحی ریاست بنایا جائے گا، ہم جدوجہد کے ذریعے اپنی منزل پر پہنچ کر دم لیں گے۔ وزیر اعظم نے کہا کہ میں آج مقبوضہ کشمیر میں بسنے والے اپنے بھائی، بہنوں اور بچوں کو پاکستان کی طرف سے پیغام دینا چاہتا ہوں کہ پورا پاکستان ان کے ساتھ ہے، ہمیں اس بات کا احساس ہے کہ وہ کس طرح بھارتی ظلم و جبر اور مشکلات کا سامنا کر رہے ہیں، پاکستان کشمیریوں کی ہر مرکمن سفارتی، سیاسی اور اخلاقی حمایت اور ان کے حقوق کے لیے جدوجہد کرتا رہے گا۔ وزیر اعظم نے اس مناسبت سے ایک نوید بھی دی جا رہی ہے، جس میں کہا گیا ہے کہ انھوں نے دھرنے کے دوران نوجوان کو جو پیغام دیا تھا وہ ان کے لیے آج بھی ایک انمول سبق ہے۔ وزیر اعظم عمران خان نے نوٹ میں علامہ اقبالؒ کا شعر

سبق پھر پڑھ صداقت کا، عدالت کا، شجاعت کا

شیئرز کیا ہے اور اس کے ساتھ ہی انھوں نے نوجوانوں کو پیغام دیا کہ وہ علامہ اقبالؒ کے اس پیغام کو اپنے لیے مشعل راہ بنائیں۔ دریں اثناء وزیر اعظم عمران خان نے اکادمی ادبیات پاکستان کے ہفتہ جشن آزادی کے موقع پر ادیبوں اور دانشوروں کی خدمات کو بھی خراج تحسین پیش کرتے ہوئے کہا ہے کہ لفظ ہی ہیں کہ ہم حقوق حاصل کر سکے، کہ اکادمی ادبیات پاکستان "ہفتہ جشن آزادی" کا عنوان سے ہر دو گماموں کے ایک سلسلے کا اہتمام کر رہی ہے جن کے ذریعے تحریک پاکستان میں اہل قلم کے کردار کو اجاگر کیا جائے گا۔ دریں اثناء قوم نے یوم آزادی جوش و جذبہ سے منایا، گورنر سندھ عمران اسمٰعیل اور وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ مراد علی شاہ نے کیپٹن، میڈیا سے بات چیت میں گورنر سندھ کہا تھا کہ جشن آزادی کے اس دن تجدید کرتے ہوئے ہم دنیا کو یہ باور کرانا چاہتے ہیں کہ حکومت پاکستان کبھی بھی کشمیریوں کو تنہا نہیں چھوڑے گی، آخر اسے وقت میں جشن آزادی اور ان قربانیاں دینے والے کشمیریوں کے ساتھ ہیں۔ وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ سید مراد علی شاہ نے کہا کہ کراچی کو دہشت گرد سے محفوظ کرنے سے متعلق کوئی آئین یا قانون بنایا جائے۔ یہ کسی کی خواہش قرار دینا سمجھتی ہے لیکن اس کی آئین میں کوئی گنجائش موجود نہیں۔ اب جب کوئی تاریخ ایناً 3 دال سنگ میل عبور کر چکی ہے اور وزیر اعظم عوام کو معاشی بہتری اور استحکام کا یقین دلا رہے ہیں، معاشی اور سماجی ترقی کا سفر گرد کی لپیٹ میں آ گیا ہے، اب وہ واضح اقتصادی اور سیاسی شاہراہ پر "ہفتہ جشن آزادی" کا عنوان ہے پر وگراموں کے ایک سلسلے کا اہتمام کر رہی ہے جن کے ذریعے تحریک پاکستان میں اہل قلم کے کردار کو اجاگر کیا جائے گا۔ دریں اثناء قوم نے یوم آزادی جوش و جذبہ سے منایا، گورنر سندھ عمران اسمٰعیل اور وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ مراد علی شاہ اور ہمارا تاثر کہ پہلے میڈیا سے بات چیت میں گورنر سندھ کہا تھا کہ جشن آزادی کے اس دن تجدید کرتے ہوئے ہم دنیا کو یہ باور کرانا چاہتے ہیں کہ حکومت پاکستان کبھی بھی کشمیریوں کو تنہا نہیں چھوڑے گی، آخر اسے وقت میں جشن آزادی اور ان قربانیاں دینے والے کشمیریوں کے ساتھ ہیں۔ وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ سید مراد علی شاہ نے کہا کہ کراچی کو دہشت گرد سے محفوظ کرنے سے متعلق کوئی آئین یا قانون بنایا جائے۔ یہ کسی کی خواہش قرار دینا سمجھتی ہے لیکن اس کی آئین میں کوئی گنجائش موجود نہیں۔ اب جب کوئی تاریخ ایناً 3 دال سنگ میل عبور کر چکی ہے اور وزیر اعظم عوام کو معاشی بہتری اور استحکام کا یقین دلا رہے ہیں، معاشی اور سماجی ترقی کا سفر گرد کی لپیٹ میں آ گیا ہے، اب وہ واضح اقتصادی اور سیاسی شاہراہ پر "ہفتہ جشن آزادی" کا عنوان ہے پر وگراموں کے ایک سلسلے کا اہتمام کر رہی ہے جن کے ذریعے تحریک پاکستان میں اہل قلم کے کردار کو اجاگر کیا جائے گا۔ دریں اثناء قوم نے یوم آزادی جوش و جذبہ سے منایا، گورنر سندھ عمران اسمٰعیل اور وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ مراد علی شاہ اور ہمارا تاثر کہ پہلے میڈیا سے بات چیت میں گورنر سندھ کہا تھا کہ جشن آزادی کے اس دن تجدید کرتے ہوئے ہم دنیا کو یہ باور کرانا چاہتے ہیں کہ حکومت پاکستان کبھی بھی کشمیریوں کو تنہا نہیں چھوڑے گی، آخر اسے وقت میں جشن آزادی اور ان قربانیاں دینے والے کشمیریوں کے ساتھ ہیں۔ وزیر اعلیٰ سندھ سید مراد علی شاہ نے کہا کہ کراچی کو دہشت گرد سے محفوظ کرنے سے متعلق کوئی آئین یا قانون بنایا جائے۔ یہ کسی کی خواہش قرار دینا سمجھتی ہے لیکن اس کی آئین میں کوئی گنجائش موجود نہیں۔ اب جب کوئی تاریخ ایناً 3 دال سنگ میل عبور کر چکی ہے

پہلے اگست چار دن پہلے آزادی مکمل طور پر روایتی طریقے سے گزر گیا۔ وزیر اعظم کی تقریر سے قوم سے سوشل میڈیا پر خوشی کا جائزہ لیتے کی ہر کاری اور غیر ہر کاری کوشش اور بھی ناکام۔ قومی آزادی کا دن کیا ہے اور کیا ہم اس سے۔ باقی سب کچھ کا اور ہے۔ آزادی کا مطلب ہے آزادی کا پورا حق۔ پورا آزادی کا مطلب قوموں سے ہے کہ آزادی ایک بہت بڑی ذمہ داری ہے۔ آزادی ایک بہت بڑی ذمہ داری ہے۔ آزادی کے تحفظ کے لئے ہمیں اپنے اندر اور باہر حقیقت میں کیا ہونا چاہئے تھا حقیقت میں کیا ہوا ہے۔

اس موقعہ خوشی کی اس طور پر ہماری قوم نے استقبال کیا ہے اس سے اندازہ ہوتا ہے کہ ہم صرف اور صرف ساڑھے تیرہ ہیں۔ ہم کو کوئی خبر نہیں ہے۔ ہم صرف ساڑھے تیرہ ہیں اور ہم ساڑھا تیرہ ہیں۔ اصل میں ہم کو پتا ہی نہیں کہ ہم آزادی حاصل کر چکے ہیں۔ یا اب ان مقاصد کا ذکر کیا جس قدر مشکل ہو گیا ہے۔ گزشتہ تاریخ دیکھ لیں۔ مگر کیا نہیں یاد ہے کہ ہم کیا تھے۔ کیا ہیں۔ کیا سمجھ رہے ہیں۔ ہم کیا ہیں۔ ہم کیا تھے کیا ہیں۔ کیا ہم کیا ہیں۔ کیا ہم کیا ہیں۔ کیا ہم

Average Canadian house price rose 14% in year up to July, CREA says

Canada's housing market came roaring back in a big way in July, smashing the record for the most homes sold during the month, and average prices rising 14 per cent from where they were a year ago.

The Canadian Real Estate Association (CREA), which represents 130,000 realtors across Canada, said Monday that 62,355 Canadian resale homes were sold via the Multiple Listings Service, shattering the previous record for most sales in a month.

The July figure was 26 per cent higher than June's figure. July is not typically the busiest time of the year for home sales, but as it has with just about everything else, the COVID-19 pandemic has thrown the old ways out the window.

The housing market typically starts off the year slow in the colder months, before warming up in the early spring and usually peaking in about May or June. By later in the summer, sales start to slow, and then go into hibernation through the winter before the cycle starts up again.

But the arrival of COVID-19 in March has seemingly delayed that schedule, as sales in March and April were wiped out because of lockdowns, and that home selling activity is only now returning to the market.

"What a difference three months makes, from some of the lowest housing numbers ever back in April to the multiple monthly records logged in July," CREA's chief economist Shaun Cathcart said of the numbers.

"A big part of what we're seeing right now is the snap back in activity that would have otherwise happened earlier this year."

The sales boom is being led by Canada's biggest cities, as home sales rose by 49.5 per cent in the Greater Toronto Area, 43.9 per cent in Greater Vancouver and by 39.1 per cent in Montreal.

Prices rising at fastest pace since 2017

The average selling price in July was $571,500, an increase of 14.3 per cent from the same level a year earlier.

CREA says the average price can be misleading because it is easily influenced by sales of expensive properties in big markets like Toronto and Vancouver. So the realtor group calculates another number, known as the Home Price Index, which it says is a better gauge of the market because it strips out that volatility, and adjusts for both the volume and type of housing being sold in every market.

The HPI increased at a 7.4 per cent annual rate in July. That's the fastest pace of gain since 2017. All 20 of the biggest housing markets in Canada had a higher HPI number in July than they did in June.

The Toronto area, Guelph, Ottawa and Montreal saw the biggest price spikes, with prices climbing faster in most markets east of Saskatchewan. Prices rose more modestly in British Columbia and Alberta, CREA said.

Prices are increasing and so are sales, but it's clear the market is still being very much impacted by COVID-19.

The inventory level, which is the total amount of homes available for sale, has fallen to its lowest level in 16 years.

"There are listings that will come to the market because of COVID-19, but many properties are also not being listed right now due to the virus," Cathcart said.

TD Bank economist Brian DePratto said "it looks like we got at least one 'V' recovery after all," referring to the shape of the bounceback - a sharp drop followed by an equally sharp recovery.

"In just three short months, Canadian resale activity and average prices have not just popped back to above pre-pandemic levels, but to new record highs," he said.

COVID-19 causing delays for immigration applicants to Canada

OTTAWA -- Those looking to immigrate to Canada should be prepared to face extensive delays, says a Toronto-based immigration lawyer, citing pandemic-related hurdles causing a backlog of applications.

Chantal Desloges told CTV's Your Morning on Monday that it's been difficult to advise clients about the processing timeline due to the unpredictability of COVID-19.

"Before COVID-19, it would take you about a year if you applied for citizenship, now with these delays, I would say if you budgeted between a year and two years it would probably be more accurate," she said. "Especially for people like refugees, many of whom are separated from their families while they're waiting for a hearing, this kind of a backlog is absolutely devastating for them."

The government's immigration and citizenship website says it is still accepting most permanent resident applications but its ability to "review and process them" is being impacted by COVID-19. While the government says it can't estimate processing times, it's prioritizing Canadians returning to the country, vulnerable groups, and people who perform or support essential services.

In a statement to CTVNews.ca, a spokesperson for Immigration Minister Marco Mendicino said that while delays are inevitable, the ministry is working to modernize the system to minimize disruption.

"The department began holding virtual citizenship ceremonies on April 1, beginning with individuals and families whose citizenship ceremony had been cancelled, and who needed citizenship for urgent reasons, like employment," said Kevin Lemkay.

Desloges said this resourceful thinking is a welcome change for her clients.

"You see immigration, a very large bureaucracy, which historically has been a little bit resistant to change, starting to do things very innovatively like holding citizenship ceremonies on Zoom for example, which a year ago, if you had asked me would they ever do, I would have said 'absolutely not.'"

The Refugee Protection Division - the tribunal branch of the Board - posted on its website that it resumed in-person hearings during the week of Aug. 3. The Immigration Division will resume its in-person processes on Sept. 14, and continue with video conferencing until then.

Desloges also predicts the move is here to stay.

"[It] is an excellent step. I could never understand why it was necessary to meet certain people in person when you know it's a great inconvenience for a lot of people to attend an immigration interview in-person. So I think you'll see that continue," she said.

On Friday, Immigration Minister Marco Mendicino announced a temporary measure to provide permanent residency to asylum claimants working in Canada's health-care sector during the pandemic.

To apply for residency now, they must have claimed asylum in Canada prior to March 13 and have spent no less than 120 hours working as an orderly, nurse or another designated occupation between the date of their claim and Aug. 14.

Canada-U.S. border closure extended again amid tension over restrictions OTTAWA -- Canadian and U.S. officials have agreed to keep the border between the two countries closed to non-essential travel for another month. This comes as both countries are still working to stop the spread of COVID-19, and as tensions continue to flare between Canadians and prospective American visitors.

The current extension of the cross-border agreement expires on August 21, though as the spread of COVID-19 continues in both countries, the restrictions on recreational travel will remain in place until at least Sept. 21. The ban on discretionary travel was first introduced in March and has been extended each month since.

"We are extending the reciprocal restrictions at the Canada-US border for another 30 days, till Sept. 21, 2020. We will continue to do what's necessary to keep our communities safe," tweeted Public Safety Minister Bill Blair.

The agreement, as it stands, exempts the flow of trade and commerce, as well as temporary foreign workers and vital health-care workers such as nurses who live and work on opposite sides of the border. Tourists and cross-border visits remain prohibited.

This is the fifth renewal of the border restrictions since the coronavirus pandemic was declared.

During a briefing on the latest COVID-19 modelling, Chief Public Health Officer Dr. Theresa Tam said the assessment as to when it'll be safe to allow recreational travel between Canada and the U.S. is happening continuously as the epidemic can shift quickly. She also said Canadian health officials are in regular contact with U.S. public health authorities, including the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

"Every month when we evaluate that situation again, we'll take into account what's going on, on both sides of the border. But, as you know, as we look at further planning out, we have to look at different options of how we can increase safely-as safely as possible-international travel," Tam said.

As of June 9, foreign nationals who are immediate family members of either Canadian citizens or permanent residents can enter Canada to be reunited, under a limited exemption to the current border restrictions. This has allowed both foreign and cross-border Canada-U.S. families to reunite under certain stipulations, including having to remain in Canada for at least 15 days.

While those eligible to cross the border for this reason include parents, spouses, common-law partners, dependent children and their children, many other families remain separated by the border restrictions including non-married couples. Those in this predicament continue to push for a further loosening of the rules in order to see their loved ones.

'NOT THE TIME TO VISIT'

While the restrictions have been in place for months, that hasn't stopped some Americans from coming into Canada, which has led to numerous instances of confrontations between locals and visitors with U.S. license plates, as well as other expressions of frustration.

Some have legitimately boarded flights from the U.S. to Canada -which is permitted with restrictions like quarantining on arrival-though thousands of others have tried less-legitimate routes, or tried to cross over to come shopping or sightseeing.

As has been seen in Nova Scotia, the concerns about Americans are not without some merit, as there have been confirmed cases linked to people's failure to self-isolate.

The tensions aren't exclusive to American visitors. Even some cross-province travel has irked locals, both in the Atlantic Canada bubble, and out West, where British Columbia Premier John Horgan suggested those with out-of-province license plates on their vehicles consider taking public transit or riding a bicycle if they're feeling harassed.

Here are some notable examples of cross-border COVID-19 tensions.

THE 'ALASKA LOOPHOLE'

At least a dozen Americans have been fined under the Quarantine Act, after trying what's been coined the "Alaska loophole": travellers telling border agents that they are passing through Canada in order to get to Alaska for an essential purpose such as working or returning home, but they end up vacationing in Alberta and British Columbia instead.

In response the federal government has rolled out new restrictions requiring foreigners entering Canada en route to Alaska to do so at one of five approved border crossings and prohibiting them from visiting any tourism sites or stopping to get food anywhere other than drive-thru restaurants along their way. These pass-through visitors are also being given a "hang tag" to attach to their vehicle's rear-view mirror, to make them easily identifiable. The tag will include the date by which they must leave Canada.

These crossings prompted Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland to urge Americans to exercise caution and delay their trips to Canada until it has been deemed safe to do so.

"I love the Rockies too. I grew up in Alberta. Personally, I can think of no better place to spend time," she said in mid-June. "But now is not the time to visit, hopefully we will be back to normal at some point soon."

TENSION IN COTTAGE COUNTRY

Ontario cottage country is typically home to many Americans over the summer, though this season there have been reports of out-of-towners being targeted and having their cars keyed.

This prompted Muskoka Lakes Mayor Phil Harding to encourage his residents to not jump to conclusions.

"Just because somebody is driving a U.S. vehicle doesn't make them a bad person or carrier of the virus, and certainly doesn't preclude them potentially from being here for a variety of other reasons," he said.

Harding has also spoken about an incident in near Huntsville, Ont., where he said two men approached a man getting gas and said "you're American go home," to which the man stated he lived in Canada.

FLOAT CHASE

With so many shared waterways there have also been incidents where Americans have floated into Canada despite warnings not to, as the restrictions include a ban on any cross-border entry for boating or fishing.

Among the instances of improper aquatic crossings was a whale watching boat with American passengers that crossed into Canadian waters in B.C. In that case the boat operator was fined $1,000 and escorted back to the United States.

As well, there's been a "float chase" down the Kettle River in B.C. after a Washington State border jumper entered Canada illegally at a closed border crossing and ended up on foot, and eventually in the water for two and a half hours as he tried to evade arrest.

He was eventually escorted back to shore with the help of some "good Samaritans" who waded in after him.

'It's really scary': CRA suspends online services after cyberattacks

OTTAWA -- The Canada Revenue Agency has temporarily suspended its online services after two cyberattacks in which hackers used thousands of stolen usernames and passwords to fraudulently obtain government services and compromise Canadians' personal information.

A total of 5,500 CRA accounts were targeted in what the federal government described as two "credential stuffing" schemes, in which hackers use passwords and usernames from other websites to access Canadians' accounts with the revenue agency.

The decision to suspend CRA's online services comes at a time when many Canadians and businesses have been using the revenue agency's website to apply for and access financial support related to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The government is hoping to reinstate online access for businesses on Monday, according to a senior government official. That is when companies struggling due to the pandemic can start to apply for the latest round of federal wage subsidies.

It wasn't immediately clear what impact the suspension of services will have in terms of other federal benefits, however, including the Canada Child Benefit and Canada Emergency Response Benefit for those affected by COVID-19.

The revenue agency was also vague in terms of what victims of the attack will have to do to get their accounts reinstated after it disabled them to prevent further fraud, saying only that letters will be mailed to those who have been affected.

At least one victim says she has yet to hear anything from the government after someone hacked into her CRA account earlier this month and successfully applied for the $2,000-per-month Canada Emergency Response Benefit for COVID-19.

Leah Baverstock, a law clerk in Kitchener, Ont., says she first realized her account had been compromised and contacted the revenue agency herself when she received several emails from CRA on Aug. 7 saying she had successfully applied for the CERB.

"The lady I spoke to at CRA, she's said: 'This is a one-off,'" said Baverstock, who has continued to work through the pandemic and did not apply for the support payments.

"And she told me a senior officer would be calling me within 24 hours because my account was completely locked down. And I still haven't heard from anybody."

Baverstock expressed frustration at the lack of contact, adding she still does not know how the hackers accessed her account. She has since contacted her bank and other financial institutions to stop the hackers from using her information to commit more fraud.

"I am quite concerned," she said. "Somebody could be living under my name. Who knows. It's scary. It's really scary."

Many of the hacked CRA accounts were targeted as part of a broader "credential stuffing" attack in which more than 9,000 accounts that Canadians use to apply for and access federal services were compromised.

Those hacked accounts were tied to GCKey, which is used by around 30 federal departments and allows Canadians to access various services such as employment insurance, veterans' benefits and immigration applications.

"These attacks, which used passwords and usernames collected from previous hacks of accounts worldwide, took advantage of the fact that many people reuse passwords and usernames across multiple accounts," the Treasury Board of Canada said in a statement.

One-third of those accounts successfully accessed services before all of the affected accounts were shut down, said the Treasury Board, which is responsible for managing the federal civil service as well as the public purse.

Officials are now trying to determine not only how many of those services were fraudulent while the RCMP and federal privacy commissioner have been called in to assess the scale and scope of personal information stolen.

The government warned Canadians to use unique passwords for all online accounts and to monitor them for suspicious activity.

The Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre says more than 13,000 Canadians have been victims of fraud totalling $51 million this year. There have been 1,729 victims of COVID-19 fraud worth $5.55 million.

Canadian company wants tech workers affected by U.S. immigration ban

Foreign tech workers may find silver lining with Canadian tech businesses

"What if my visa gets cancelled?"

"What if I lose my job and health insurance?"

Those are the messages on nine billboards around Silicon Valley, the hub of innovation and technology in the San Francisco Bay Area of Southern California-and a Canadian company is behind them.

Communitech is using this ad campaign to target foreign tech workers in the Bay Area who are affected by the U.S. immigration ban. The company will offer tech workers a work permit as well as health insurance. The work permit will be processed quickly through the Global Talent Stream.

In June, U.S. President Donald Trump suspended immigration for the remainder of 2020 for certain visa holders. This includes H1-B visas that are issued to highly-skilled tech immigrants.

Some foreign tech workers in the U.S. have been worried about their employment and immigration status since the ban, and a Canadian tech company Communitech is looking to capitalize on that.

"We are all looking for great talent and I think the great thing about Canada is that it is a very welcoming place. We do care about diversity and inclusion," said the CEO of Communitech, Iain Klugman, speaking to ABC7News.

While the reason behind the immigration ban in the U.S. is to preserve employment for American citizens, Klugman recognizes that each foreign tech worker that comes to Canada creates a number of jobs for Canadians. According to Klugman, that number is between six and 19.

Many Silicon Valley CEOs are also facing difficulty hiring talent from all over the world. Michael Worry, CEO of Nuvation Engineering appreciates that Canada does well at "accelerating these systems," AB7News reports.

Canada makes it considerably easier for Canadian employers to recruit highly skilled talent through the Global Talent Stream.

The processing time is just two weeks after the employer submits a Labour Market Impact Assessment (LMIA), which also takes two weeks.

The LMIA is a document an employer needs to obtain before hiring a foreign worker. The purpose of the document is to show that there no Canadian or permanent resident is available to fill the position.

An employer would need to be eligible for one of two categories through the Global Talent Stream.

Category A requires the employer to be referred by a designated referral partner, except in Quebec where the referral must come from a Quebec partner.

In the case of Communitech, this requirement would be waived, since Communitech itself is a designated referral partner.

The candidate must have advanced knowledge of the industry, hold an advanced degree and have five years of experience. The annual base salary offered must be north of $80,000, depending on the occupation's prevailing wage.

As for Category B, the employer must be hiring for one of twelve occupations. The salary of the position also depends on the occupation's prevailing wage.

In addition to the Global Talent Stream, Canada's provinces also boast tech-specific immigration streams such as the British Columbia Provincial Nominee Program Tech Pilot, as well as Ontario Tech Draws.

The U.S. immigration ban paves the way for Canada to emerge as a leader in technology and innovation, taking advantage of the country's welcoming immigration policy.

On Independence Day, Sushant Singh Rajput recognised for his contribution to cinema by the California State Assembly

On the occasion of Independence Day, the California State Assembly recognised Sushant Singh Rajput for his contribution to cinema and the community . The certificate was received by the late actor's sister Shweta Singh Kirti.

Shweta took to her Instagram handle to share a picture of herself posing with the certificate. "On the occasion of Indian Independence Day California recognizes my brother's (Sushant) overall contribution to society. California is with us.... are you? Thanks for your support California," she wrote.

Sushant Singh Rajput was found hanging in his apartment in Mumbai on June 14. It has been two months since his death and several people have been demanding a fair investigation and justice in the case. On August 14, Sushant's family observed a 24-hour spiritual prayer. Shweta took to her social media handle and requested people to join the family in the Global prayers on August 15.

Sharing a quote from the Bhagavad Gita, Shweta wrote, "It has been 2 months you left us Bhai and we are still fighting to know the truth, to know what actually happened that day. I request you all to please join us for Global 24-hour spiritual and prayer observation for Sushant Singh Rajput, so that the truth prevails and we find justice for our beloved Sushant #GlobalPrayers4SSR #CBIforSSR #Warriors4SSR #justiceforSushantSinghRajput#godless#hate(sic)."

Rabia Khan: Sushant Singh Rajput, Disha Salian Victims Of Serial Killing, Just Like Jiah Khan

Rabia Khan, the mother of late Bollywood actor Jiah Khan, has said that she believes that her daughter, Sushant Singh Rajput, and his ex-manager Disha Salian fell victim to serial killing and asserted that people from Bollywood and politics were involved in the two deaths in June that she as dubbed murders.

Rabia, who herself has worked in a few Bollywood films in the 80s, said that from the similarities in all the three death cases, it could be easily made out that the same crime syndicate had given effect to these crimes.

She also drew parallels between the cases of Sushant Singh Rajput and her daughter to buttress her assertions. Jiah Nafisa Khan had allegedly committed suicide at her Juhu flat in June 3, 2013 at the age of 25.

In an exclusive telephonic interview to IANS from London, Rabia said: "I have the feeling that whoever killed Jiah has also used Rhea (Chakraborty) to kill Sushant."

"The person who killed Jiah has killed Sushant. My child's boyfriend used her for her money. He controlled Jiah. Rhia was also doing the same. From where did she get this much money? If it came from Sushant, we know that (it is possible) since he was doing films, endorsements, and advertisements. If not, from where did all the money come from? Was she into drug trafficking? Was she into narcotics? Was she friends with drug peddlers?" asked Rabia, who was married to Indian-origin US businessman Ali Rabbi Khan.

Gavaskar's Tribute To The Late Chetan Chauhan: A Giver, Not A Taker!

"Aaja, aaja, gale mil, after all we are in the mandatory overs of life" was the usual greeting of my opening partner Chetan Chauhan whenever we met over the last two or three years. The meetings were invariably at his beloved Ferozshah Kotla ground where he was in charge of the pitch preparation. As we hugged I would say to him that, "no, no we must have another century partnership" and he would laugh and then say, "arre baba you are the century-maker, not me". Never in my wildest nightmares could I believe that his words about being in the mandatory overs of life would come true so soon. It is hard to believe that his laughter and cheerful banter won't be there the next time I go to Delhi.

Talking of mentoring, I firmly believe that I was responsible for him missing out on two occasions, both in Australia in the 1980-81 series Down Under. In the second Test in Adelaide, he was on 97 when my teammates pulled me out of my chair in front of the TV and dragged me to the players balcony, saying I must get there to cheer my partner. I was a bit superstitious about watching from the players enclosure as then the batsman would get out as he would always watch on the dressing room TV. Once the landmark was reached, then I would rush to the players balcony and join in the cheers. However, here I was in the Adelaide balcony when Dennis Lillee came into bowl and would you believe, Chetan was caught behind first ball. I ran livid and told the players off for having got me to the balcony but that wasn't going to change what had happened. A few years later, I didn't make the same mistake when Mohd. Azharuddin was approaching his third consecutive hundred in Kanpur and as soon as he got to the coveted mark I was out of the change room and applauding him from next to the sightseers. However, some of my friends in the media who had the knives out for me then made a big story of my so-called absence. Amazingly, they had had nothing to say about the absence of some when a year earlier, I got my 29th century to be level with Sir Don Bradman in Delhi.

The second occasion that I believed was responsible for Chetan missing a hundred was when I lost my head after being abused by the Australians as I was leaving the pitch after a terrible decision. Trying to drag Chetan off the field with me must have disrupted his concentration and he was again out short of a century a little later.

There's one thing that few players of my generation and the one immediately after that don't know is his contribution in getting tax exemptions for them. Both of us first met up with the late Shri R Venkataraman, who was the Finance Minister of the country then and requested him to consider a tax exemption for free received for playing for India. In this aspect, I must add that it wasn't just for cricket but for all sportspersons who played for India. We explained how when we were junior cricketers we had to spend a lot of money on equipment, travel, coaches etc. when we had no income at all. Shri Venkatramanaji was most considerate and in a notification he passed a ruling that gave us 75% standard deduction for a Test match fee and then an exemption on 50% of the tour fees which we received before leaving for a tour. The cherry on the cake though was the total exemption on the one-day match fees of Rs 750 which we received those days.

Suresh Raina's Decision To Retire 'Bit Shocking' For Rohit Sharma

Indian batsman Rohit Sharma on Sunday said Suresh Raina's decision to retire from international cricket was a "bit shocking" to him as he extended "best wishes" to Raina for his future.

"Bit shocking but I guess you feel it when you feel it. Good career he, have a great retirement, still remember the time when we came into the squad best wishes moving forward @imraina," Sharma tweeted.

On Saturday, the World Cup-winning captain, MS Dhoni, announced his retirement from international cricket. And minutes after Dhoni's retirement, Raina also announced that he is retiring from international cricket.

"It was nothing but lovely playing with you, @mahi7781. With my heart full of pride, I choose to join you in this journey. Thank you India. Jai Hind!" Raina had written in an Instagram post.

Raina is the first Indian batsman to register centuries in all three formats of the game.

The 33-year-old has played 18 Tests, 226 ODIs, and 58 T20s for India. The left-handed batsman scored 5,615 runs in ODI cricket at an average of 35.31.

He registered 768 runs in the longest format of the game with his highest score being 120. In the shortest format of the game, Raina scored 1,605 runs at an average of 29.18.

Raina was also a part of the 2011 World Cup-winning squad and the batsman had played crucial knocks in the quarter-finals and semi-finals of the tournament.

Kasautii Zindagii Kay: Parth Samthaan and Sahil Anand plan to quit the show

Only recently, Parth Samthaan joined the sets of Kasautii Zindagii Kay after recovering from Coronavirus. The actor had left for Pune to spend time with his family after testing negative for COVID-19 but landed himself in a legal soup since his residential society members did not appreciate him leaving despite being under containment. However, there are reports that Parth Samthaan who plays the protagonist Anurag Basu's role has apparently given his resignation letter.

The actor wants to focus on his health and other projects and hence has decided to walk out of the show. Ekta Kapoor has been trying to convince him to stay back, but it looks like the actor has made up his mind. Along with him, Sahil Anand who plays the role of Anupam Sengupta, has also decided to quit the show. The production house has not yet accepted their resignation letter but the rumours are strong that the two have made their decision.

Ravi Shastri: Wicketkeeper MS Dhoni Was Faster Than Any Pickpocket

Faster than the best pickpockets as wicketkeeper and a cricketer who changed the game for all times to come, said India coach Ravi Shastri on the just-retired Mahendra Singh Dhoni, adding a bit of quirkiness to the emotional tributes that have poured in. Dhoni bid adieu to international cricket on Saturday, posting "consider me retired" on his Instagram page. Shastri offered his take on the impact made by the two-time World Cup-winner in his trademark tongue-in-cheek style.

"This man is second to none. And coming from where he did he changed cricket for all times to come. And his beauty is he did it to all formats," Shastri told 'India Today'. "For me what stood out was his stumpings and his run outs. He had such fast hands that he was at times faster than any pickpocket," he said. Counting Dhoni's achievements, Shastri said despite creating an enviable legacy, Dhoni's calm demeanour made him unique. "T20 - he has won a World Cup and multiple IPL titles. 50 overs

- he has won a World Cup. Test cricket - he has taken India to the number one position in the world. Player/90 Test matches," he said.

"And he always took life as it came. From his days in Kharagpur to his days as an Indian cricketer he was always in the moment. And in retirement also he has moved on. "As I said he is second to none," he added. The former cricketer said Dhoni set a new bar in wicketkeeping despite not being a "natural". "... but (he) was effective as hell. Look at the impact he had... The first seven wouldn't even realise that Dhoni had taken the bails off and that's something that added to his aura. "Twenty bit of cricket's greatest, not greatest but the greatest, you have to include this man," he signed off. Dhoni last played for India in July 2019 at the last World Cup semi-final against New Zealand. He was on a sabbatical after that but remained a subject of immense speculation, which ended with his announcement on Saturday.

He will, however, be seen in action leading the Chennai Super Kings in the IPL from September 19 in the UAE. The event has been moved out of India this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

418,500 New Canadian Jobs: Be Proud, Canada!

Is Canada recovering from the COVID-19 shock faster than expected? The jobs reports over the past three months are surprising following the loss of three million jobs in March and April 2020. In July, 418,500 new jobs were added to the economy, and cumulatively from May, the recaptured jobs stand at 1.7 million.

The substantial employment numbers show a 55% recouping of pandemic losses. It's also better than the 42% recovery of payroll losses by the United States. Canadians should feel mighty proud. The rise in employment somehow reflects the perseverance of the people, despite the hardships during the lockdown period.

Inching closer to pre-pandemic levels

Aside from inching closer to pre-pandemic levels, the immediate impact of the July additions is the drop in the unemployment rate to 10.9%. May holds the record-high 13.7% before sliding to 12.3% in June. Economists believe it was the aggressive reopening of some economies that pushed up the numbers.

However, it'll be a slow recovery. The early employment gains are encouraging, but it would be harder to replicate the feat in the ensuing quarters. Most of the increases in July were in part-time jobs. There were only 73,200 full-time positions out of the total figure.

Silver lining

The asset is not just clear, although two consecutive months of declining unemployment rise shows Canada is moving in the right direction. A favourable scenario is a better full-time, part-time split like in June. There were 488,000 full-time positions and 465,000 part-time hires during the month.

Canada is witnessing a historic crisis in the labour market, as hundreds of thousands left the workforce. The silver lining is that a lot of firms are still operating below 180% capacity. Thus, it's understandable to see that hiring, for now, is higher for part-time jobs.

Income for countries

After the pandemic, it becomes imperative for Canadians to look for permanent financial support options. If you can save money wherever possible, investing in Bank of Nova Scotia (TSX:BNS)(NYSE:BNS) is a clear step in the right direction. This blue-chip asset is an outstanding income generator for long-term investors.

The bank stock currently pays the highest dividend (6.34%) among the Big Five banks. Likewise, the price is down 17% year-to-date, so you're getting a bargain if you take a position today. Your $50,000 savings will produce $3,120 in permanent passive income. Having a reliable income source will diminish reliance on federal aid.

Over the last 10 years, Scotiabank's total return was 81.41%. If you held the stock for 10 years, the same $50,000 capital will compound to $91,950.54. There's comfort in the fourth-largest lender in Canada because of its 188-year dividend track record. Scotiabank is capable of sustaining the payouts for two centuries more.

Collectively-flat

Canadians deserve a pat on the back for persevering throughout the lockdown period. As the economy moves toward the recovery phase, participation is a must. By heeding the government's call to seek employment actively, the pace of putting down COVID-19 losses should accelerate. People will significantly benefit from a collective effort.

Canada's Trudeau, finance minister clash over green plans, soaring deficit

OTTAWA (Reuters) - A deepening rift between Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and his finance minister about coronavirus spending is also fueled by disagreements over the scope and scale of proposed green initiatives, three sources familiar with the matter said.

Trudeau and Finance Minister Bill Morneau are scheduled to meet on Monday in a bid to sort out their differences, said a fourth source aware of the meeting. The sources requested anonymity given the sensitivity of the situation.

Morneau and his team have pushed back against other Cabinet ministers about how much funding was needed, including to what extent the recovery could be helped by investing in environmental projects, the people added.

Trudeau, who campaigned on a platform to tackle climate change, believes the 2021 budget should have an ambitious environmental element to start weaning the heavily oil-dependent economy off fossil fuels and he recently hired former Bank of England Governor Mark Carney as an informal adviser, aides say.

The appointment, coupled with a Globe and Mail report that Trudeau and Morneau had clashed over the amount of money Ottawa is spending to combat the coronavirus, led to speculation about the future of the finance minister. Morneau, 57, has been in the job since the Liberals took power in late 2015.

Asked for a reaction, Trudeau spokesman Cameron Ahmad noted that the prime minister issued a statement on Tuesday saying he had "full confidence" in Morneau, who confidants say is alarmed by ballooning budget deficits.

An official working for Morneau said the finance minister was in constant touch with the Trudeau team on policy files.

"There are always discussions, but that's typical," said the official, adding that Morneau had been clear "that we would need to invest for recovery."

Environment Minister Jonathan Wilkinson along with Infrastructure Minister Catherine McKenna, a former environment minister, have met with top civil servants to discuss options that could involve billions of dollars in extra spending, said one of the three sources. Heritage Minister Steven Guilbeault also attended the meetings.

Morneau's resistance to expensive environmental initiatives reflects his roots in Bay Street, Toronto's financial center, and a view held among right-leaning Liberals that deficits are out of control.

"The idea of greening the economy just by spending money on every project you have to front of you is not really serious," said a fifth source sympathetic to Morneau's position.

"NEED TO GET A GRIP"

Possible budget measures range from investments to help provinces reduce their carbon footprints, boosting research into clean technology and encouraging the construction of efficient buildings.

"Morneau has been saying: 'We need to get a grip.' And that isn't always popular," said one of the three sources familiar with the matter.

Canada's budget deficit is forecast to hit C$343.2 billion ($253.4 billion), the largest shortfall since World War Two, this fiscal year. Total coronavirus support is nearly 14% of gross domestic product.

"He was not very keen on a huge deficit; that's not what he wanted as his legacy," said a sixth source familiar with Morneau's thinking.

Problems between a finance minister and colleagues with ambitious proposals are not unusual. "Every single department in government that spends money ends up butting heads with Finance," said the fifth source.

Canada offers immigration support to Lebanon

Canada is offering a helping hand to those affected by the tragic explosion in Beirut last week.

Canada is establishing an immigration task force in support of Lebanon.

Canada's Minister of Immigration and the Minister of Foreign Affairs issued a statement following that the task force will assist those affected by last week's tragic events in Beirut. The purpose of the task force is to "support the delivery of consular services, and to ensure that questions related to immigration can be quickly addressed," they said in the statement.

Special immigration measures for Lebanese individuals

The Canadian government commits to allowing Lebanese citizens who are temporarily in Canada to extend their stay if they are unable to return home because of the explosion.

In addition, Lebanese citizens who are in Canada temporarily and Canadians and permanent residents who are in Lebanon and who need to return home will be exempt from fees related to the renewal of their status documents.

Canadians and permanent residents in Lebanon have the right to return to Canada, provided that coronavirus public health measures are followed. Immediate family members of foreign nationals who are related to Canadian citizens and permanent residents are also exempt.

The exemption is subject to possession of a valid temporary resident visa, a mandatory two-week quarantine and a minimum 15-day visitor stay in Canada. International students coming from Lebanon may also travel to Canada if they have a valid study permit issued before March 18, 2020.

Lebanese immigration to Canada

Lebanese immigration to Canada has a long and storied history. The first Lebanese immigrant to Canada is believed to have arrived in Montreal in 1882. Today, the Canadian government estimates there are between 200,000 and 400,000 Canadians of Lebanese origin living in Canada.

Lebanese-Canadians are among the many prominent members of Canadian society. They comprise the likes of federal, provincial, and municipal politicians, athletes, musicians, academics, civil society officials, and business people.

Currently, Lena Diab is Canada's longest serving immigration minister. She has served as the province of Nova Scotia's immigration minister since 2013. Diab was born in Nova Scotia, but moved with her family to Lebanon during her childhood before eventually returning to Canada.

Last week, Lebanese-Canadian business leaders announced they would seek to raise at least $2.5 million in relief for victims in Lebanon.

Between 2015 and 2019, an average of 1,880 Lebanese nationals obtained Canadian permanent residence per year.

Canada welcomes immigrants under its economic, family, and refugee classes.

Lebanese-Canadians with close family in Lebanon are able to sponsor their relative through Canada's family class program.

The largest available immigration option is through Canada's economic class program. It comprises nearly 60 per cent of the 340,000 or so immigrants that Canada seeks to welcome each year.

About the tragedy

Two strong explosions in the port of Beirut devastated several sectors of the city on August 4, 2020. More than 200 people were killed and 6,000 injured in the explosion. The extensive structural damage left approximately 300,000 people homeless and rendered several health care facilities, including hospitals, inoperable.

Canada responded quickly to help those most affected by the blast by providing up to $30 million in humanitarian and development assistance to the Lebanese people. Recently, Canada's partners at the United Nations Refugee Agency and the International Organization for Migration have restarted refugee resettlement operations, with priority being given to the most urgent cases.

"The people-to-people ties between Canada and Lebanon are strong. Canada will continue to monitor the situation closely to ensure that survivors of the recent tragedy receive the help they need. We remain engaged and stand ready to assist however we can," declared the Canadian government in the statement.

School starts in a month, but Canada's most populous province still doesn't know what that will look like

Back to school is imminent for Ontario students, but important elements of exactly how that will look during the COVID-19 pandemic remain up in the air.

Many questions remain about the province's $309-million plan to reopen K-12 schools this fall, with new protocols to be implemented and scores of new staff including teachers, school nurses and custodians who need to be brought on board, trained and deployed.

One notable part of the plan is a $50-million commitment to hire up to 500 school-focused public health nurses. But midway into August, that process is still in the "roll-out" stage, Premier Doug Ford admitted on Wednesday.

"We have a call-out right now for nurses. We want to make sure we fulfill the 500 positions without draining from the system," Ford said during his daily news conference.

"Let's get them in the classroom as soon as possible - even if it takes a couple extra weeks ... as long as the 500 nurses are coming."

Details around school nurses still to be ironed out

Details about who is hiring these nurses and where they will be embedded need ironing out, according to Doris Grinspun, CEO of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Grinspun, who is among those consulting the province about this part of the plan, welcomes the initiative as a whole, calling the new hires a public health necessity for schools given the complex health concerns that are facing students and teachers going forward.

"We need to be prepared for an outbreak in a school. We need to be prepared for preventing an outbreak," she said.

These nurses, who Grinspun notes would ideally be registered nurses with baccalaureate degrees, would have the expertise to tackle a wide range of issues.

Not only would they adapt to potentially changing COVID-19 conditions this fall and winter, as well as liaise with local public health authorities, but would also tackle flu season and address concerns such as bullying, addiction, anxiety and depression - conditions that may already be exacerbated by the pandemic, Grinspun added.

"This is not only about dousing and doffing [masks] ... This is about much more than that," she said. "Solving problems [on an ongoing basis], in the context of reopening of schools, it's not simple at all."

Tying this new wave of school nurses to local public health units across the province is also vital, Grinspun said, "so fit the teams on those units and ... blend with the rest of the programs" already underway for specific communities.

Custodial staffing levels an ongoing issue, unknown

Another major component of Ontario's plan is $75 million for hiring more than 900 additional custodians and buying cleaning supplies.

But it doesn't go far enough, according to Laura Walton, president of Ontario School Board Council of Unions (OSBCU), which represents 35,000 education workers including custodians and cleaning staff.

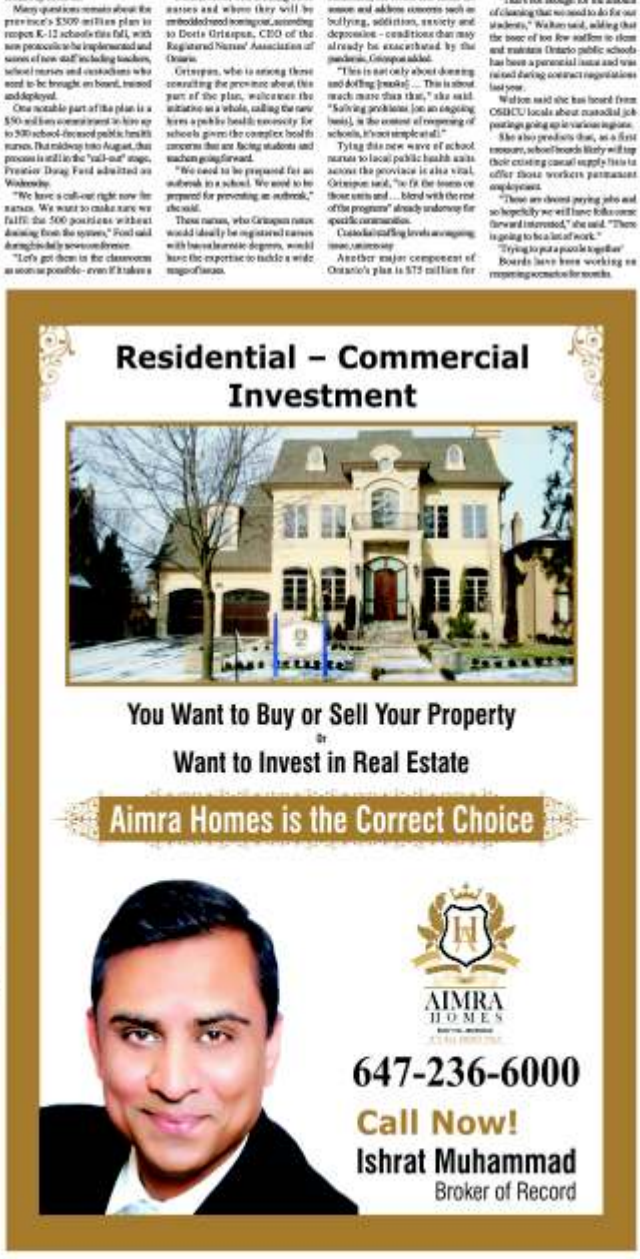
"Nine-hundred custodians seems like a lot of people. But you're talking about 4,800 [public elementary and secondary] schools across the province," she said.

"That's not enough for the amount of cleaning that we need to do for our students," Walton said, adding that the issue of too few staffers to clean and maintain Ontario public schools has been a perennial issue and was raised during contract negotiations last year.

Walton said she has heard from OSBCU locals about custodial job postings going up in various regions.

She also predicts that, as a first measure, school boards likely will top their existing casual supply lists to offer those workers permanent employment.

"These are decent paying jobs and so hopefully we will have folks come forward interested," she said. "There is going to be a lot of work."

"Trying to put a puzzle together"


Boards have been working on reopening scenarios for months.
