Former U.S. secretary of state Colin Powell dies of complications from COVID-19

Powell died of complications from COVID-19, his family said early Monday on his Facebook page.

In the post, his family said Powell had been fully vaccinated and was receiving care at Walter Reed National Medical Center in Bethesda, Md. The Powell family's social media post did not address whether Powell had any underlying illnesses, but Peggy Clinton, Powell's longtime aide, told The Associated Press he had been treated over the past few years for multiple myeloma, a blood cancer.

In a long military career that included service in the Vietnam War, Powell rose to public prominence by serving as national security adviser under President Ronald Reagan beginning in 1987, two years later becoming the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In the latter role he oversaw the U.S. invasion of Panama and later the U.S. invasion of Kuwait to oust the Iraqi army in 1991.

Powell, who retained calls to run for president himself later that decade, would go on to be nominated by President George W. Bush to serve as secretary of state in 2001. Powell was the first Black person to serve as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and secretary of state.

Bush called him a "great public servant" in a statement mourning his death.

"He was such a favorite of presidents that he served the Presidential Model of Freedom twice," said Bush.

Powell famously represented the administration at the United Nations, arguing that U.S. intelligence had confirmed Iraq's possession of weapons of mass destruction, which was ultimately proven to be incorrect.

During his tenure as secretary of state he underwent surgery to treat prostate cancer.

Supporters Democrats who were later ousted from the Republican Party, including Democrats Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton and Joe Biden in their presidential campaigns, though he stressed in interviews he had no party affiliation.

In 2020, Powell called President Donald Trump's foreign policy a "shambles" and criticized his personal character.

"His list about things, and he gets away with it because people will not hold him accountable," he said in an interview.

Lloyd Austin, U.S. President Joe Biden's defense secretary and the first Black man to serve in that role, called Powell an honored great leader.

"I feel as if I have a hole in my heart," Austin said Monday.

Powell is survived by his wife of 59 years, Alma, and three children, including Michael Powell, who served as U.S. Federal Communications Commission chairman under George W. Bush.

"We have lost a remarkable and loving husband, father and grandfather and a great American," the family said.

Powell will forever be associated with his controversial presentation on Feb. 5, 2003, to the UN Security Council, making President George W. Bush's case that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein constituted a threat to the world because of his country's stockpiling of chemical and biological weapons.

"These are not assertions. What we're giving you are facts and conclusions based on solid intelligence," he told the panel.

In the Security Council chamber, he displayed photographs and diagrams purporting to detail Iraqi weapons of mass destruction, as well as translations of Iraqi intelligence intercepts.

At one point, Powell brandished a small vial containing a teaspoon of simulated anthrax, warning that Iraq had not accounted for "mass space bus systems of thousands of tonnes" of the deadly pathogen.

The invasion came at a time when no such weapons were found, undermining American credibility for years. U.S. forces fought in Iraq from 2003 to 2011, with nearly 4,500 American troops killed and 32,000 wounded.

Powell years later said he and his staff spent days "winning the garbage" that Vice President Dick Cheney's staff had provided as evidence of Saddam's weapons program and alleged links to al-Qaeda.

He admitted later that the presentation was rife with inaccuracies and twisted intelligence provided by others in the Bush administration and represented "a lie" that will always be a part of his mind.

"There were some people in the intelligence community who knew at that time that some of these sources were not good, and shouldn't be relied upon, and they didn't speak up. That devastated me," Powell told interviewer Barbara Walters in 2005.

In order to immigrate to Canada through a PNP, you must first be nominated by the province or territory.

Immigrate to Canada without a job offer: Ontario PNP

Unlike many other countries in the world, Canada provides opportunities for foreigners to immigrate without first landing a job offer.

Because the Canadian immigration system is highly versatile and dynamic, there are several immigration avenues available to those who have not yet found a job that would help them immigrate to Canada.

While the most common and coveted immigration route in Canada is known as the Express Entry system, there is an equally promising route called the Provincial Nominee Program (PNP).

Express Entry is based on a Comprehensive Ranking System (CRS) in which points are accumulated based on human capital factors. While in most cases Express Entry candidates do not require a job offer, having one will result in a much higher number of points, and therefore a better chance of being invited to apply for permanent residence in Canada.

Canada's PNP, on the other hand, was introduced to ensure a more balanced distribution of the benefits of immigration throughout the country. The program gives participating provinces and territories the opportunity to nominate a set number of economic immigrants for permanent residence each year. PNP are quite different from one province to another, with each province determining its own set of nomination requirements.

In order to immigrate to Canada through a PNP, you must first be nominated by the province or territory.

How can I immigrate through the OINP without a job offer?
Nine Canadian provinces and two territories participate in the PNP, including Ontario. The province receives one-third of all new economic immigrants to Canada each year. People choose to settle in Ontario because of its employment opportunities, high wages, and diverse population.

The Ontario Immigrant Nominee Program (OINP) is one of the most active PNPs in the country. Some 8,000 invitations to apply are sent out through multiple streams each year.

If you wish to settle in Ontario and do not have an offer of employment, you may submit an application under the Ontario Express Entry: Human Capital Priorities Stream. This stream is designed for foreign skilled workers who would like to work and permanently settle in Ontario. It allows the province to search for and nominate eligible candidates who have submitted a profile using the federal Express Entry pool and who meet the language, work experience, and several other criteria necessary to enter the provincial labour market.

A job offer is therefore not required, but you must have an active Express Entry profile and meet requirements set by Ontario such as having work experience in targeted occupations or sectors to be considered and invited to apply in this stream.

If you apply to be nominated by Ontario and receive a Notification of Interest, you will receive a message through your Express Entry account inviting you to submit an online application to the OINP.

If your application is successful, you will receive a Nomination Approval Letter. You will be asked to accept or refuse the nomination in the Express Entry system. If you accept, you will receive an additional 600 points towards your Express Entry CRS score, which effectively guarantees you will be invited to apply for permanent residency with the Government of Canada.

So far this year, the Human Capital Priorities Stream has been one of the most active Ontario PNP streams with 4,851 NOIs already issued to Express Entry candidates.

OINP Express Entry-Human Capital Priorities Stream you will need:

- Have an active Express Entry profile;
- Meet the eligibility requirements for one of the Federal Skilled Worker Program (FSWP) or Canadian Experience Class (CEC);
- Meet the stream's work experience requirements;
- Have a Canadian Bachelor's, Master's, or PhD degree or an equivalent foreign education credential;
- Demonstrate a language proficiency level of 7 or higher of the Canadian Language Benchmark;
- Intend to reside in Ontario;
- Have sufficient funds to cover settlement costs in Ontario.

ZEE5 Original film Rashmi Rocket aptly summarizes the struggles of women athletes across the globe

- Rashmi Rocket highlights one of the most heinous practices several women athletes have been subjected to globally-

A study conducted by ESPN revealed that 68% of female athletes felt pressured to be pretty and 39% have the fear of being "too muscular". While often good looks are equated to excellence and caliber of an individual, several female athletes encounter an unrealistic battle between beauty and success in sports. Not just that, female athletes at times must undergo several unjust tests and traps of cosmetic procedures just to be in the sport. Notable international sports personalities across nationalities-Caster Semenya, Simona Biles, Elena Sklyar, Dina Chandani and others, stand testimony to the same.

South African athlete, Caster Semenya, winner of two Olympic Gold Medals and three World Championships, is one of many women around the world targeted by regulations that require women with naturally higher-than-typical levels of testosterone to submit to so-called sex testing and undergo unnecessary medical interventions to reduce hormone levels in order to keep competing. Indian professional spinner and current national champion in women's 100 meters event, Dina Chandani was dropped from an international competition back in 2014 due to similar reasons.

Canada's travel industry lauds U.S. move to allow travellers with mixed COVID-19 doses

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention capped off a whirlwind week of developments for North American travel on Friday, announcing that the U.S. would accept fully vaccinated travellers from Canada and Mexico who had received two doses from mixed vaccines once their health borders reopen in November.

Blies shocked the world with her withdrawal from the major events of the 2020 Tokyo Olympics, citing mental health concerns post medical evaluations. Considered one of the greatest gymnasts of all time, Biles has struggled with discrimination based on body image and is a survivor of sexual abuse. rom being shunned away for voicing the unjust practices, to facing discrimination in some forms, female

Religious exemptions to COVID-19 vaccine mandate: Here's what we know, what we don't

With the first deadline for federal COVID-19 vaccine mandates looming, many who haven't yet received the jab are scrambling to take their shot, preparing to face consequences, or seeking an exemption for medical or religious reasons.

The new policies, set to be implemented at the end of October, come months after Prime Minister Justin Trudeau pledged to impose new proof of vaccination requirements across all federally regulated industries - including a mandate for domestic travellers not specific to federal employees.

While some medical exemptions simply include allergies to the vaccines themselves, the lines are somewhat blurry when it comes to religious objections. Here's a look at religious exemptions for vaccination - who is eligible, how soon can you get such an exemption and if it could potentially be used to avoid COVID-19 vaccine mandates in Canada.

Rep. Brian Higgins, who represents New York's 26th congressional district, previously told the Canadian Press that he would like to see the federal government do away with its mandatory PCR COVID-19 test requirement, which costs travellers roughly $200 on average.

While the federal government and several provincial human rights commissions have promised that exemptions would be given out, public health experts, ethicists and even Prime Minister Trudeau have said they would be few and far between. In a statement to Global News, the prime minister's office said there would only be "very limited exceptions" to the vaccine mandate for travellers. In particular, to address "the realities of remote, fly-in communities; emergency travel; and exceptional medical reasons."

Shinning stars of Twenty20 World Cup

A look at players who have had a huge impact on the history of the tournament with their consistent excellence:

Shahid Afridi (Pakistan) - 39 wickets and 546 runs in 34 matches
The greatest wicket-taker in the history of the ICC Men's T20 World Cup, Pakistan's Shahid Afridi is one of the poster boys of the format capable of leaving an impact with bat and ball. His reverse-swing overarm came in 2009 when he inspired Pakistan to the title, earning Player of the Match honours for his performance in the eight-wicket win over Sri Lanka in the final. In that game Afridi took one for 20 with a miserly spell before hammering an unbeaten 54 off 40 balls to see his side home. His 39 wickets are the most of any player in the tournament, while he is just outside the top ten all-time runs scorers with 546, and only Tillakaratne Dilshan has played more than Afridi's 34 matches.

Shahid Afridi (Pakistan) - 567 runs and 30 wickets in 25 matches
The only player on this list who has not reached at the least the semi-finals of the competition, it is a mark of Afridi's skill and his batting prowess that he has been so successful despite playing in a struggling side. One of just eight men who will be playing in 2021 having also featured in the inaugural tournament, Afridi has been one of the great all-rounders in the ICC Men's T20 World Cup. He joins Afridi as the only players to have scored at least 500 runs and taken 30 wickets in the tournament, and if this performance in England two years ago are anything to go by, his taste for the big occasion is only increasing.

Chris Gayle (West Indies) - 920 runs in 28 matches
The man born to play T20 cricket, Chris Gayle has made the format his own and 'The Universe Boss' will

Pak vs India: Virat Kohli insists Oct 24 clash with arch-rivals 'just another game'

As fans across the world gear up for what is set to be a high-octane Twenty20 World Cup opener between Pakistan and India, the latter's captain Virat Kohli played down the hype surrounding the match, terming it "just another game" for his team.

Asian giants India, who were the original hosts of the 2021 event before the pandemic meant a shift to the Gulf, will begin their campaign against arch-rivals and fellow former champions Pakistan on October 24 with Kohli looking to go on with a bang before stepping down as captain of the T20 side.

"I honestly never felt so," the Indian skipper said when asked whether playing against Pakistan felt different than other teams.

"I have always approached this game as just another game of cricket. I know there is a lot of hype created around this game more so with ticket sales and the demands for tickets," he added.

In a lighter vein, Kohli said he had noticed friends asking for five tickets to the high-profile clash.

"Right now the value of those tickets is ridiculously high. So that's all I know, friends asking me for tickets left, right and centre. I refused," he said.

Sushmita Sen Reveals Nobody Is Allowed To Gift Her Diamonds, Not Even Her Boyfriend Rohman Shawl

Sushmita Sen is one of the strongest women in the industry who has ever been. She has been breaking barriers and setting records since she won the Miss Universe 1994 pageant. Her relationship with Rohman Shawl, despite the age difference, is also an example of true love. And how does a modern Indian woman operate at that? Like Sush does. She can buy her own diamonds, and does not need man to give them to her. And so does Sushmita Sen's sapphire.

Sushmita says she does not let her boyfriend Rohman Shawl buy her diamonds. The former beauty queen was recently quoted if she asks her boyfriend or Jewels gifted by her diamonds. To that, she told Zom TV, "I do not allow friends to gift me diamonds. That does not happen. I buy them. I like giving them."

Recalling the first diamond she bought, the actress said that the first diamond she bought was a "ten-cent diamond with a pure gold band that had an open-ended design" that could be adjusted for size. "After that, I graduated slowly to 22 carat," she said.

Earlier, Sushmita Sen had famously said that "women must buy their own diamonds". She said, "This I hold to this day. Size matters so that you can let the man know and see that either you match the size of my diamond or the size of my heart. Hence it is going to be tough to work on the diamond piece and make it bigger than this. It's important to set benchmarks for yourself."

"She had also shut down her engagement rumors with me. 'This ring is to me and all of you that I don't need a man in my life to have diamonds. I can own them myself!'"

Six memorable moments from T20 World Cup

Yuvraj takes record 6-6

Dutch courage at Lord's
In the 2009 tournament opener, the Netherlands pulled off a sensational four-wicket win over England at Lord's, the 'Home of Cricket', in one of the sport's greatest shocks. Chasing 163 to win, the Dutch scored two runs off the final ball. Tommy de Graaf, who made a crucial 49 for the Netherlands, said: "We set out a few months ago to achieve a few things and this was one. We wanted to play at Lord's, this quality for the World Cup in 2011 and beat a big nation, and I think we just did that."
